

FERPA - Information for Parents

What is FERPA?

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA), also known as the “Buckley Amendment”, is a federal law which provides that colleges and universities will maintain the confidentiality of student educational records. The law basically states that no one outside the University shall have access to students’ educational records nor will the University disclose any information from those records without the written consent of students. There are exceptions, such as allowing certain personnel within the University with a legitimate educational interest to see the records, or releasing the records in an emergency in order to protect the health or safety of students or other persons.

Directory Information

Under FERPA, LSSU can release directory information about our students without their prior authorization. LSSU considers the following directory information: name, address, telephone number, email address, place of birth, enrollment status (e.g., undergraduate or graduate, full-time or part-time), major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, height and weight of members of the athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees, honors and awards received (including scholarships), and most recent previous educational agency or institution attended by the student.

Under the provisions of FERPA, as amended, students have the right to withhold disclosure of any or all of their directory information. Students wishing to restrict their directory information must complete the Directory Restriction Request form and turn it in to the Registrar’s Office.

Parents Access to Educational Records

As a parent you may want access to your child’s educational records. We recognize how important family members are to the success of our students, but we are limited by FERPA on the information we can share.

At the post secondary level, parents have no inherent rights to inspect their child’s educational records. The right to inspect is limited solely to the student. Student records may be released to parents only under the following circumstances: (1) through the written & signed consent of the student, (2) in compliance with a subpoena, (3) by producing a copy of the most recent Federal income tax form showing that the student was claimed as a dependent, (4) in connection with a health or safety emergency if knowledge of the information is necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or other individuals, or (5) if the student has violated any Federal, State or local law, or any rule or policy of the University governing the use or possession of alcohol or a controlled substance, if the University determines that the student has committed a disciplinary violation regarding that use or possession and the student is under 21 at the time of disclosure.

We recommend that parents request the needed information directly from their student. For unusual or special circumstances, please contact the Registrar directly.

Health and Safety Emergencies

If non-directory information is needed to resolve a crisis or emergency situation, LSSU may release that information if it is determined that the information is “necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or other individuals”. Factors to be considered in making a decision to release such information in these situations are: the severity of the threat to the health or safety of those involved; the need for the information; the time required to deal with the emergency; and the ability of the parties to whom the information is to be given to deal with the emergency.

My.LSSU & Anchor Access

All LSSU students are given a username and password allowing them access to My.LSSU, our online portal. My.LSSU contains the students’ LSSU email account, and contains a variety of information to help students succeed. Through My.LSSU, students can enter Anchor Access. Students use Anchor Access to register for courses, receive midterm and final grades, view their academic transcript, view and pay their tuition and fees, view their financial aid, etc.

One way to view your son or daughter’s academic information is to have your son or daughter share their My.LSSU username and password with you.

Who should I contact if I have questions or concerns?
